DR. KENDALL TO TEACH DURING CSWE LEAVE

Dr. Katherine A. Kendall, CSWE Associate Director, leaves the end of December on a six-month leave of absence. As a Carnegie Visiting Professor at the School of Social Work, University of Hawaii, she will teach a course during the spring term on the History of Social Work in the Master's program and offer a special seminar on Comparative Social Work, and International Organization for Social Welfare.

En route to Honolulu, Dr. Kendall will attend the International Congress of Schools of Social Work and the International Conference of Social Work in Rome. As Secretary of the International Association of Schools of Social Work, she will also participate in a Working Party of Conference leaders in Milan called to review the national reports on the theme of the Conference and to prepare a summary document as a guide for Conference discussions. Following the international meetings in Rome, Dr. Kendall will stop briefly in Athens, Beirut, Delhi and Hong Kong.

Her special seminar on Comparative Social Work will be directed, in part, towards the orientation of social workers in Hawaii to broad international movements in social welfare and to similarities and differences in conceptions of social work and functions of social workers in different parts of the world. She brings to this assignment many years of experience in international activities, first as a member of the United Nations Secretariat and, more recently, as Secretary of the International Association of Schools of Social Work. Her foreign assignments have included missions to Brazil, Guatemala and Paraguay and participation in United Nations seminars and working parties in Europe. In June, 1960, Dr. Kendall was awarded a "Diploma de Honor" by the Ministry of Public Health and Social Welfare of Paraguay citing her contribution to the development of the School of Social Service.

DUMPSON STRESSES NEED FOR PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION FOR PUBLIC WELFARE

Editor's Note: During the sessions of the Golden Anniversary Conference of the National Urban League in September 1960, James R. Dumpson, Commissioner, New York City Department of Welfare, was a co-recipient with New York Mayor Wagner of the "Two Friends Award." The following is an excerpt from Commissioner Dumpson's acceptance speech:

"In part, the essential activity you have honored is the professional social worker practicing as an administrator in public welfare. Fifty years ago when the National Urban League was established, the idea of a professional social worker as the chief administrator of the largest municipal welfare program in the country was as unknown as was the importance of full economic and social equality to the full fruition of our democracy. Indeed, as one views the historical perspective of public welfare in our country, one is aware that it has only recently gained a recognized place in the field of professional social work. This is regrettable, because no part of our helping efforts has greater need for the knowledge, understanding, and skills of modern professional social work than public welfare. With the growing acceptance of basic governmental responsibility for the economic well-being and the fullest self-realization of all its citizens, public welfare has grown in awareness of its irreplaceable role in assuring the general welfare. Many of us have come to accept that our social defense demands equal priority with our military defense. Indeed, for the full protection of our way of life they are inseparable. The Urban League has chosen to honor the growing maturity of the administration of governmental programs and the role of the professional in it for the social, economic and emotional well-being of our citizens. As a symbol of that development in an essential activity, I accept your honor."

FACULTY CHANGES AND PROMOTIONS

In accordance with the practice initiated several years ago, the Council has requested information on changes in faculty from the accredited graduate schools of social work and the undergraduate departments offering sequences in social welfare content and holding constituent membership in the Council on Social Work Education. The following report is based upon the information provided by the schools.

Previously published faculty or administrative changes have not been included. The data are cited with the schools in the order in which they are listed in the Directory of Graduate Professional Schools of Social Work and Undergraduate Departments of Colleges and Universities Offering Sequences in Social Welfare. Each citation provides (1) the name of the newly appointed faculty member, (2) his rank, (3) the field in which he will offer instruction, and (4) his former position. NEWS FROM THE SCHOOLS

Graduate Schools

The School of Social Welfare, University of California, Berkeley, beginning this fall semester, will offer for the first time a program of advanced study leading to the degree of Doctor of Social Welfare. The program, designed for the education of teachers and researchers, has admitted, for the academic year 1960-61, seven full-time and six part-time students. A grant from the Lilly Endowment, Inc. has made it possible for the School to offer, over a three-year period, a one-year post-Master's program in research in community organization. Several faculty members of the School who are returning from leaves of absence carried on research and study while on leave. Professor Davis McEntire studied population movements in Italy where he held a Fulbright Award for advanced research with accreditation to the Universities of Rome and Padua. Professor Ernest Greenwood worked on a book on experimental design and methodology of experimental sociology. Professor Margaret Schubert has been conducting research at the Research Center, School of Social Service Administration, University of Chicago. This project was financed in part by a grant from the Field Foundation. Lydia Rapoport was awarded a Senior Stipend by the National Institute of Mental Health and studied at the Harvard School of Public Health. During this coming year the following faculty members have been granted sabbatical leaves: Henry Maas, Gordon Hearn, Maurine McKeany and Gertrude Wilson.

sources necessary to enrich its field and class work program. The OVR grant will improve the School's capacity to develop opportunities for student social workers in the rehabilitation setting as well as to contribute to an enriched understanding of rehabilitation in interdisciplinary professional education. The OVR grant has made it possible to establish a Student Unit in the Rehabilitation Center of the University Hospital which will be under the direction of Donald Lawitts. He has been most recently a Teaching Fellow in the doctoral program of the University of Chicago. The grant of $34,100 from the Rosamond Gifford Charitable Corporation represents a contribution to the School of Social Work for the fifth year that has been of immeasurable importance in faculty recruitment, student scholarships and overall School growth. The School is also pleased that details have been completed for the development of a Student Unit in collaboration with the Onondaga County Department of Public Welfare with Mrs. Caroline Ruhe as Unit Supervisor and who will contribute to classroom teaching as her background and experience may be pertinent. Mrs. Ruhe had previously worked with the School for five years as a student supervisor in the Child and Family Service agency in Syracuse. Professor Hortense S. Cochrane is on leave of absence during 1960-61 as a Fulbright Professor and is teaching at the P. S. G. School of Social Work, Coimbatore, India.

CSWE REPRESENTED AT SOCIAL SECURITY ANNIVERSARY

President Ruth E. Smalley and Jane Hoey, CSWE Board member, attended the 25th anniversary celebration of the Social Security Act in Washington, D. C., August 15, 1960.

Former Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, Marion B. Folsom gave the principal address on the history of the Act, the changes it has undergone and its present provisions. Mr. Folsom emphasized that the program must continue along its present lines, for the welfare of the country, and referred to the need for a partnership of three forces: Government, private industry (through pension plans), and individuals (through savings), in order to insure adequate retirement funds for all of the American people.

He spoke of Government's contribution as being desirable enough to assure coverage and healthy, decent living, but not enough to discourage individual savings and the responsibility of private industry.

The group was welcomed by the present Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, Arthur Flemming. Commissioner William Mitchell presided.

CONFERENCE ON AGING SCHEDULED FOR JANUARY 1961

The First White House Conference on Aging, to be held on January 9-12, 1961, on call of the President, is to be planned and conducted under direction of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Conference will develop recommendations for further research and action in the field of aging. The primary purpose of the Conference is to give major impetus to the further development of policies, programs and services which will create an environment in which middle-aged and older people can realize their maximum potentials as normal, healthy, secure and useful members of American society.

CSWE, in its invitation to participate in this Conference, was assigned a quota of five delegates. The following people will represent CSWE: Mrs. Bernice McIntosh, Howard University; Arthur J. Robins, University of Missouri; Mrs. Harry A. Teitelbaum, CSWE Board member, Baltimore, Maryland; Irving Weissman, Tulane University; and Grace White, CSWE Educational Consultant.

NEW SCHOOL SELECTS DEAN

Verl L. Lewis, Associate Professor School of Social Work, University of Connecticut, has been appointed Dean, School of Social Work, University of Maryland, which was formed in September 1960.

The school is to be housed at 645 W. Redwood Street in Baltimore to take advantage of the field instruction opportunities in that city. Dean Lewis holds a Master's degree in social work from the University of California at Berkeley and a D. S. W. from Western Reserve University, School of Applied Social Sciences.

CURRICULUM STUDY WIDELY REVIEWED BY PROFESSIONAL JOURNALS

Slightly over a year has elapsed since the entire set of thirteen volumes of the Curriculum Study was made available to social work educators, practitioners and members of allied professions. The Study has evoked broad interest and controversial opinion as to its applicability to the social work curriculum of the future.

The Board of Directors of the Council on Social Work Education adopted a policy prior to publication of the Study providing that "the CSWE through all possible channels shall encourage thorough consideration and discussion of the findings and recommendations and their implications for social work education and practice. . . . Implementation of any of the recommendations of the Study can come only after the field has had full opportunity to consider the reports, the appropriate bodies of the Council have considered and recommended action which would modify or change existing policies and standards."

In an effort to give wide dissemination of the Study to the profession the cooperation of the professional journals in reviewing the books has been of considerable help. Among the journals that have reviewed major portions of the Study are: Social Casework, The Social Service Review, Child Welfare, Public Welfare, Jewish Community Center News, YWCA Magazine, Journal of Home Economics, Journal of Rehabilitation, Journal of Jewish Communal Service and Public Administration News. A number of other publications have reviewed one or a few volumes of the Study.

Space limitations make it impossible to quote from these reviews extensively. An editorial comment in Social Casework, however, bears repetition:

"Now that the thirteen volumes are available, both educators and practitioners must undertake the formidable task of reading them and of relating the parts to each other and to the whole. They must also keep in mind that the final product represents only the conclusions of members of the Study staff. . . .

"What the Curriculum Study has provided, therefore, is not a blueprint to be accepted or rejected, but a general design which the field must fill in piece by piece. The task of creating the parts of the pattern and of fitting them together devolves on the entire profession. Social agencies have as great a stake in molding the pattern of future social work education as do the graduate schools and undergraduate departments and should gear themselves to participate responsibly in developing and testing social work theory and methods of field instruction.

"The questions raised by the Study about relevant social work theory are similar to those raised by other persons and groups. Frequent allusion is made in the current literature to the need for the field to develop a framework that includes social science as well as behavioral theory. There is general agreement that the solution is not to be found by discarding the present psychological base in favor of the newer sociocultural insights, or by merely adding one set of concepts to the other. Rather, the task is that of building theory useful to social work practice through a process of integration and careful testing. No one expects that the integrative task will be accomplished quickly or that it will ever be completely finished. The Curriculum Study should have the value of stimulating further effort in this direction on the part of both schools and agencies."
